Conference Organized

2019-2020: A unique tripartite Project, that engaged the students all through the year with specific focus on their research and writing skills, was organized in the Academic Year 2019-2020. The three steps of this Project included a workshop on the basics of Academic Writing, a Short-Term Course, and a Student Seminar at the end:

- ✓ 2019, September 4th: Conducted a Workshop English Language for the Purpose of Research (ELPR-19) which focused on the basics of academic writing. The course was initially opened only for the English Honours students of all three years. This first part of the tripartite-structured programme helped students generate tangible resources in the form of research papers and was aimed to make them aware of research practices as well as prepare them for postgraduation in English.
- ✓ 2019, September 8th-October 23rd: Conducted the second part of Project, an Add-on Short-term Certificate Course (ASCC-19) adaptation studies that encouraged the students to write papers on film adaptations of books prescribed in their syllabus. As one of the three mentors of the course, I mentored the students through the writing process and discussed the progress of the papers in individual sessions with students over a period of three weeks. All the final papers were then read and judged by the three mentors and the best three papers were awarded monetary prizes.

- ✓ 2020, February 7th: As the third part of the Project, a one-day National Seminar for Students, sponsored by UGC, was organized on the topic “Retelling Familiar Stories: Revisiting Adaptation Studies.” The purpose of the seminar was to provide students with a platform to read their papers in a real academic setting and to be better equipped for advanced research studies.

2019, February 5th-6th: Two-days UGC sponsored National Seminar Revisiting Nationalism and its Changing Contours: The Curious Case of the Returnee Indians at SGND Khalsa College, University of Delhi.

2018, February 7th-8th: Acting as Co-convenor with Dr. Bhagwant Kour, organised two-day National Seminar sponsored by UGC on Outcast Voices and [Dis]located Identities: Reconsidering “Exile” in Contemporary Narratives.

2018, October 27: Invited to deliver a lecture on Homer’s Iliad at Deen Dayal Upadhyaya College, Delhi University, Dwarka, New Delhi.
