

ATR

- The department recently conducted a Bridge Course on Introduction to English Literature for first year students to provide a fundamental knowledge base for understanding their course better and accommodating to its structure.
- The department has addressed the problem of communication with a large class by conducting regular tutorial sessions, which gives scope for one-to-one interaction with students.
- To generate interest towards literary texts, the department ensures student involvement and engagement through movie screenings, YouTube videos and PowerPoint presentations.
- The department faculty puts consistent efforts in developing a relatable approach towards texts, in dialogue with the contemporary context. It helps students understand the social, political, and cultural relevance of their study material.
