Organized by: MUSOC Society

Date: 04-02-2021

Number of Participants:9

The Musoc society: music society of Sri Guru Nanak Dev Khalsa College conducted an online event Anhad on February 4, 2021. The theme of the event was semi classical solo singing competition. The nature of the competition was inter-college. Since, the event was conducted online, so entire procedure of registration, permission letters, posters, promotion, invites to the faculty, audition files and conduct of event, entire process was completed through online platform. In the event students from across the colleges of universities participated such as Hindu college, Rajdhani college, Gargi college, Sri Guru Nanak Dev Khalsa college, Maharaja Surajmal Institute, Sri Aurbindo college. The total number of participants were nine. Since the nature of event was semi classical, participants presented various forms of expressing semi classical musical talent. All the participants were given in total five minutes for their performance. The participants were asked to keep their audio and video on during their performance. On the basis of their musical skills, confidence level, and presentation of their talent, all the participants were marked by three teachers of the college itself as a judge. On that basis only, winners were ranked as first, second, and third, and were awarded with cash prizes which were online transacted in their accounts. While the rest of the participants were motivated and congratulated for their performance and were provided with participation certificate. Apart from this, participants were provided with adequate feedback on their respective performances. Further, the eagerness of participants for music and their passion in performance, enlightened the event, and enhanced the spirit of Musoc for continuing such activities in future.
