economic research. A short interactive game was conducted to test basic knowledge of economic indicators and database concepts, which made the session more lively and participative.

Practical demonstrations were also given where students learned how to import datasets, run basic commands, and interpret outputs in Stata. These hands-on activities helped in building both conceptual clarity and practical skills.

Main Ideas

The workshop primarily focused on the importance of databases in studying and analyzing the Indian economy. Key topics included the use of statistical tools like Stata for managing large datasets, understanding economic indicators such as GDP, inflation, and unemployment, and interpreting data for research purposes. The session also highlighted how reliable data sources and proper analysis techniques are essential for making informed economic decisions. Overall, the workshop emphasized the integration of data analysis with economic theory to gain meaningful insights into real-world economic trends.

Vote of thanks

The Convenor of the department, Dr Mamta Ahuja, thanked the dedicated faculty for their unwavering support for giving the students a real-life experience on how industries work.
