Main Ideas

1. Introduction to Noise Pollution Rules The workshop offered a comprehensive overview of the Noise Pollution (Regulation and Control) Rules, 2000, formulated under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986. It highlighted the government's commitment to regulating and reducing noise levels across different zones to safeguard public health and overall well-being.
2. Role of Citizens and Authorities A major emphasis of the session was the shared responsibility of citizens, authorities, and institutions in upholding and enforcing noise pollution standards. The discussion reinforced that effective noise management depends on collective participation, heightened public awareness, and strict adherence to the legal framework
