Activities  On the occasion of World Wetland Day , the EnviSAGE society organized an educational visit to Sultanpur National Park , located in Haryana near Gurugram. The visit aimed to provide students with first-hand exposure to a wetland ecosystem, understand its significance as a vital bird habitat, and appreciate the diverse ecosystem services wetlands offer.  The field visit was guided by Dr. Robin Suyesh , Assistant Professor, Sri Venkateshwara College, University of Delhi, who has extensive experience in identifying avifauna of the Delhi NCR region. Under his guidance, ten students of the society conducted a systematic survey of the wetland.
Main Ideas  During the visit, students successfully identified and documented 42 bird species . They actively observed bird behaviour, learned field identification techniques, and enthusiastically captured photographs of various species. The interaction helped students understand wetland biodiversity, conservation challenges, and the ecological importance of such habitats.  Overall, the visit proved to be a highly enriching and memorable learning experience , strengthening students' interest in ecology and wildlife conservation.
